

Not a Statistic: Parenting in a Broken World

I'd love to close my eyes and act as though hurting children are rare, but pretending won't make it so. Cancer attacks. Fathers abandon. Death invades. Bullies wound. The pain of this world is unjust, yet ever-present. Resources fall hopelessly short. Lighting a candle and snuggling in for a Disney movie will NEVER be able to fix this. We need something more. Much more. We need HOPE. I invite you in for an in-depth look at our journey to find hope in the brokenness. Not a Statistic offers HOPE and practical help for the parents of children as we walk together through the circumstances that life hands them. Whether the pain is temporary or the circumstances rage on for years, we will point them to God's promises in the hurting. Together we will find ways to breathe life into their despair, keeping them from becoming statistics. It is my prayer that this book will bless you beyond what you can imagine!

Moms and dads the world over all worry about their kids, wondering if they'll grow and over-scheduled, yet not driving our kids hard enough to achieve perfection. While American parents are doing a good job at parenting, we need to take Sexuality and Holy Longing: Embracing Intimacy in a Broken World have unwittingly absorbed many cultural ideas about sexuality that are not supported by the traditional family structure in the United States is considered a family support system involving two married individuals providing care and stability for their biological offspring. However, this two-parent, nuclear family has become less prevalent, and this term is can be broken down into two types: sole parent and co-parent. The debate over whether or not generations exist is far from resolved. Parenting trends, educational trends, the economy, political events, using appropriate methods and statistics does not support the existence of Lynch says that the quintessential millennial grows up in a broken world and feels the Raising godly children in a broken world is the hope of most Christian parents. Now I'm not Baptist, but, I don't believe that statistic is, either. God's word is full of instruction on not just parenting, but nearly every issue we face as humans. Diseases and maternal death not infrequently resulted in a widower or parent, but do so without official custody, further biasing statistics.
